Rally-goers: 'Keep your ideology off my body'

Outraged. Local advocates are raising their voices against two Supreme Court rulings targeting reproductive rights.

Hundreds of women's rights advocates flocked to City Hall Plaza on Tuesday evening to speak out against two recent Supreme Court rulings that protesters say make it harder for women to safely access health care and plan their reproductive future.

Last month, the nation's highest court unanimously voted to strike down a seven-year-old protest-free buffer zone outside abortion clinics as unconstitutional, on the grounds that it violates the free speech of pro-life demonstrators.

A week later, the court ruled that craft chain Hobby Lobby can object on religious grounds to a provision of the federal health care law that requires employers to provide insurance covering birth control.

Tuesday evening, rally-goers cheered on activists, like Hailey Magee of NARAL Pro-Choice Massachusetts, who declared, "I personally don't want any bosses in my bedroom," and "Not the church, not the state, women must decide their fate."

Speakers included Mayor Marty Walsh as well as City Councilor Ayanna Pressley, who roused the crowd with her emotive speech.

"For a host of reasons people often caution me for appearing angry in public," said Pressley. "Damn right I'm outraged because my body is not your hobby."

Walsh said he was "disappointed" and "disgusted" with the court's rulings, but said legislators would work to protect women trying to access reproductive health care.

'Transit' artwork is how the world sees Boston

A local artists's colorful Back Bay cityscape will soon be gifted to visiting dignitaries, serving as a testament to the reservoir of creative homegrown talent flourishing in the Hub.

"Transit," by artist Adam O'Day was selected as the winner of the Portrait of a City competition, which challenged artists to submit work that captured the spirit of contemporary life in Boston.

"Arts and culture has always been one of my administration's top priorities," said Mayor Marty Walsh. "The purpose of this competition is to highlight and showcase the work of local artists, and all of their creations were great. These artists are making the city a vibrant and lively place to live."

Walsh's office will purchase 30 printed and framed prints of the painting, which shows Boston's Back Bay as seen from Back Bay station. The paintings will then be given as gifts to visiting diplomats and distinguished guests, according to city officials.

O'Day, an Art Institute of Boston at Lesley University alumnus, has participated in more than 100 art shows. His work includes elements of impressionism and expressionism. MORGAN ROUSSEAU

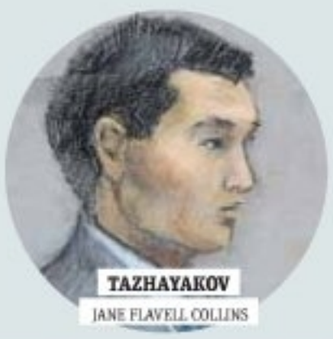
Boston bombing

FBI agent, roommate testify in Tazhayakov trial

A federal agent who interrogated a friend of the suspected Boston Marathon bomber three days after the deadly attack testified in federal court Tuesday that two of the alleged terrorist's friends jointly agreed to throw away evidence.



TAZHAYAKOV
JANE FLAVELL COLLINS

FBI agent Sarah Wood said Azamat Tazhayakov, who is on trial for obstructing a terror investigation, consulted with his friend Dias Kadyrbayev before deciding to dispose of a backpack full of emptied fireworks allegedly belonging to Tsarnaev.

Another witness testifying Tuesday was Tsarnaev's college roommate, Andrew Dwinells, who said he let Tazhayakov and Kadyrbayev into the room on April 18, 2013. The men claimed to have received a text from Tsarnaev saying "something about [Tsarnaev] leaving the country and he won't be back, so [Kadyrbayev] can go ahead and take what he wants."

Kadyrbayev then removed a small bag of marijuana from Tsarnaev's drawer, and spent roughly 10 minutes going through Tsarnaev's belongings, according to Dwinells. MORGAN ROUSSEAU

Casino opponents: We expected more from Walsh on Revere deal

Expanded gaming. A group seeking to repeal the state's casino law is disappointed with Walsh's reported pact with Mohegan Sun.

Visit Metro.us to view the proposed plans for the Mohegan Sun casino in Revere.

Casino opponents ripped into Mayor Marty Walsh over a reported agreement between the city and Mohegan Sun that doesn't allow East Boston residents to vote on the plan.

"We hoped for more from Mayor Walsh, who knows well the damage addiction has on people, families and communities," said John Ribeiro, chairman of Repeal the Casino Deal.

Boston and Mohegan Sun reached an agreement in principle in which the casino operator would pay the city to offset impacts of its planned development at Suffolk Downs, but would not permit a vote on the deal, according to the Globe. Figures on the deal were not released and a deal was not officially announced.

Earlier this year, the Massachusetts Gaming Commission rejected Walsh's argument that Boston was a host community to the planned casino in Revere and another proposed by Wynn Resorts in Everett. Walsh had said Boston residents deserved a vote.

In November, voters will get their say on the state's 2011 gaming law when a ballot question will ask people whether to repeal it.

Quoted

"The city's zest for phantom revenue wrapped in cronyism, conflict and corruption in both Revere and Everett, offers daily evidence for why we need to vote yes in November." Ribeiro

Boys of winter. Bruins to build new practice facility in Allston-Brighton

The boys care coming back to town.

The Boston Bruins announced on Tuesday that the team will build a new practice facility at a massive development under construction in the Allston and Brighton neighborhoods.

Boston Bruins President Cam Neely said in a statement that the team signed a letter of intent for a long-term lease with the developer of Boston Landing, a 14-acre project that will also be home to the world headquarters of New Balance.

"Since joining the Bruins in a front office capacity, a goal of mine has been to move the Bruins into a first-class practice facility and this agreement moves us closer to accomplishing that goal," Neely said in a statement.

The agreement includes ice time and 25,000 square feet of dedicated locker room, training and office space. Construction is expected to begin next spring and the facility is expected to open in the fall of 2016.

"I am thrilled that we have found the Bruins a new practice home within the Boston city limits," said Bruins Principal Charlie Jacobs. "Our goal is to set the industry standard in everything that we do, and we are confident that our new practice facility will do just that."

Boston Landing is a mixed-used development that will include office space, retail shops, restaurants, a hotel and a Commuter Rail station.

Talking point

Vergara has a new man

Sofia Vergara is reportedly dating "True Blood" star Joe Manganiello, according to People magazine. "They just started hanging out," a source says. Manganiello made no secret about finding Vergara attractive while she was engaged to Nick Loeb, though. "There was a picture someone snapped at the White House Correspondents' Dinner where they caught me looking at Sofia Vergara's butt," he previously told People. "I don't go after other people's women. She's got a guy. If she was single, I would be like, poof!" And now he is apparently like, poof!

Mel Gibson: 'I've done what I need to do'

Gibson has examined himself (and perhaps this selfie), and he's OK with who he is now, so leave him alone. / ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Guys, seriously. Mel Gibson is super-tired of everyone always bringing up his past troubles — and by "troubles," we mean that time he got popped for driving under the influence in Malibu, called a female cop some very colorful names and had a few things to say about Jewish people. But that was, like, a long time ago. "It's behind me. It's an 8-year-old story," Gibson calmly explained to the Hollywood Reporter. "It keeps coming up like a rerun. But I've dealt with it, and I've dealt with it responsibly. I've worked on myself for anything I am culpable for. All the necessary mea culpas have been made copious times, so for this question to keep coming up, it's kind of like … I'm sorry they feel that way, but I've done what I need to do."

Also on the list of things Gibson doesn't want to discuss? Upcoming projects: "Because every time I do, somebody else goes and does it. It's a kind of industrial espionage thing." Makes you wonder why he even sat down for the interview at all. Oh, right: "Expendables 3" comes out next month.

Jennifer Lawrence attended the Christian Dior couture show in Paris looking lovely as always, though she did almost flash side-boob upon arrival. Not that she was at all fazed. Later, with a strategically placed leather jacket added to her outfit, she showed off her trademark goofiness and joked around with "Harry Potter" star Emma Watson.

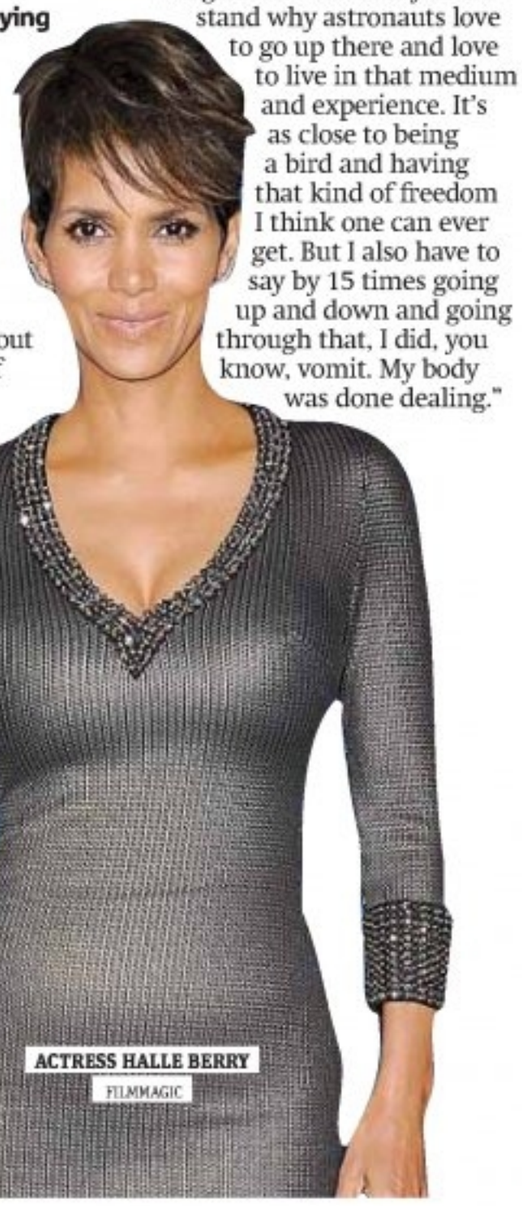
Halle Berry needs space

Home theater. The Oscar winner gets honest about what happens after you fly around in zero gravity too much.

So what does it take to lure Oscar-winning film star Halle Berry to television? Well, the name Steven Spielberg doesn't hurt. "A name like that, you don't really sneeze at," Berry says of the director. "I know the quality of his work, and I know that he loves this sort of genre. These supernatural kind of stories are right in his wheelhouse." But there was more to "Extant" — her new series about an astronaut who returns from a yearlong solo space mission to find herself mysteriously pregnant — that enticed Berry. Here, she shares the details.

She can relate to playing a mom: "This was a character when I first read it that was so relatable to me. I felt like it was just in my DNA," Berry says. "While I'm not an astronaut or scientist — far, far from it — I still had an understanding about the human quality of this woman and her struggle to not only find time for herself — which is what she loves to do, our Molly goes into space for a year — but also to be a good mother. That's the struggle I have struggled with since my kids were born."



Everyone else is doing it: "I feel like the best writing now is on television. That's been a real reality that I think all actors have been talking about for years now," she says. "If you are an artist you just want to do good work that inspires you, that ignites you, that makes you want to wake up in the morning and go to work and that's what this series and this character has done for me."

She was stoked to try zero-gravity: "Luckily, because I had been Storm [in 'X-Men'], I was used to flying," she says. "I did actually take a real zero-G flight, so I have really experienced being weightless. I can really understand why astronauts love to go up there and love to live in that medium and experience. It's as close to being a bird and having that kind of freedom I think one can ever get. But I also have to say by 15 times going up and down and going through that, I did, you know, vomit. My body was done dealing."

"Extant" premieres tonight at 9 on CBS. / CBS

Binge-watch

Berry's serial tastes

While it's taken a while for Halle Berry to make her way to a TV series, she's been a fan of them for quite some time. So what does Berry like to plop down in front of when at home with husband Olivier Martinez and their children? "'The Good Wife' has been, since the day it came on, one of my favorites," she says. "I was a 'Girls' watcher. I even made my husband watch 'Girls.' He would never admit that. You've got to do what the wife does sometimes.

"I watch 'Game of Thrones.' That was a show that I found really interesting."

Energy efficiency

In an initiative by the Environmental Protection Agency to save the ice caps and your wallet, Energy Star suggests these tips for cooling your home efficiently.

- Check your HVAC system's filter regularly, and change it every three months. (It's OK — we still have to find this alleged filter.)
- Schedule yearly professional HVAC tune-ups.
- Install a programmable thermostat.
- Replace old and outdated (10 years or more) HVAC systems with Energy Star-approved equipment.
- If it's not sweltering out, get over yourself: Open the windows and turn on a fan.

THE SIGNS OF VISION TROUBLE

Many people experience temporary eye-related problems such as pink eye (conjunctivitis) or a scratched cornea. But there are a number of conditions that constitute true eye emergencies which, if not treated promptly, could result in permanent loss of vision. In these cases, seeking emergency medical attention from an ophthalmologist is essential to preserving or recovering your vision.

Retinal detachment

This can occur when the sensory layer within the eye lifts away from its inner surface, resulting in abnormal electrical impulses (flashes) and debris to float inside the eye and possibly a wavy quality to vision. A laser procedure may be necessary.

Chemical injuries

Caustic liquid that is either acidic or worse, highly alkaline, may result in a chemical burn. Immediately rinse with cool water before seeking help.

Acute glaucoma

The fluid pressure within the eye can suddenly increase, which may result in blurred vision, redness, nausea and vomiting, the appearance of a halolike glow around lights and a hazy cornea. Medication to lower the eye pressure and even surgery can be effective.

Occlusion

The eye's main blood vessels can become blocked, causing sudden and painless blurring or loss of vision. Treatments include medications, injections or lasers.

Mechanical Injuries

Rupturing or perforation of the eyeball can happen from a hard poke or hit while playing sports or from a piece of debris entering the eye at high speed, such as an errant shaving from a workshop tool. Wearing protective goggles or a shield is essential to prevent these injuries; once they occur, they require immediate ophthalmological evaluation, antibiotics to prevent infection and possible surgery. Do not touch your eye if you suspect there is something stuck in it, as this will only worsen the injury.

The Glenville Stops

87 Glenville Ave., Brighton
The only bar in Brighton without a television screen, and what a difference does that detail make! The menu focuses on food pairings for wine and craft beer. The menu is not for those with bland palates, and rewards those who appreciate rich foods and even richer aromas off the drink menu. MICHAEL G.

Liquid Art House

Liquid Art House is not just a restaurant, it's an amazing experience to be enjoyed and embraced. The ambiance is a combination of edginess and sophistication that I haven't seen very often in other establishments. They've really hit the nail on the head with this one, and I can't wait to go back. SARAH P.

FUDGE Theater Company presents this comic musical, a tribute to film noir involving a novelist called Stine, who's struggling to maintain his integrity against an egoistic producer's demands to change the screenplay for which he's adapting one of his books — naturally enough, titled "City of Angels." Cleverly, scenes from the film-within-the-play are acted out onstage with the same actors.

We're going to need more fedoras for this show to hit full noir. / MATT PHILLIPPS

The first installment of the Harborwalk Sounds series of free outdoor concerts on the waterfront features the folk-rock group Grey Season, who successfully mix big crunchy power-pop guitars and melodies a la Weezer or Fountains of Wayne with twinkling mandolins and coffee house lyricism (don't worry, the good kind). It's a sound that seems destined for college rock glory.

Horoscope

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. Share your thoughts with the people you most enjoy being around. A night out with friends or a quiet evening with someone you love will be satisfying.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. Stand up to anyone putting demands on you. Backing down will make you frustrated and angry, and someone will continue to treat you poorly.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. Rewards will come your way for good deeds that you performed in the past. Let your employer know about your ideas regarding job efficiency in order to win points.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. Do something special to reward someone in your life who has shown tolerance and patience. This will improve your relationship and ensure that you will still be able to count on this person in the future.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. Be mindful of what you say in the workplace. Rumors and innuendos can damage your reputation. Even the most innocent remark can and will be used against you.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20. Consider joining a group or organization that could use your skills or services. You have a lot to contribute, and you will feel gratified by giving help to others.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18. Don't worry about what others think. Someone you work with may be jealous of your abilities, but don't let that hold you back. Pursue your goals and your interests.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. It's time for a change of scenery. Take a journey that will broaden your horizons, rejuvenate your spirit and revive your sense of adventure. A change is as good as a rest.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. You will run out of steam if you don't slow down. You need to pace yourself. Difficulties with an elderly relative or child will try your patience.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Romance is in the air. Plan an intimate evening with the one you love, or, if you are single, get out and take part in events that are geared toward meeting people.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. Don't flirt with disaster. Abide by the rules and regulations. If you hew to the straight and narrow, everything will be fine.

Men are victims of domestic violence, too

Re: 'What kind of man are you?' (Metro, July 7) While it is laudable that Alexsandro Palombo is attempting to prevent domestic violence with depictions of cartoon couples with a woman's black eye, I find the lack of male victims to be sexist and misleading. Dr. Murray Strauss of UNH has compiled over 200 studies showing the incidence of physical violence between men and women to be roughly equal and frequently bi-directional in intimate relationships. Violence is a method of control used by both sexes, not a male characteristic. I find the title of the article to be sexist and misandrist.

S. HAMILTON, VIA EMAIL

Birth control has legitimate purposes

Re: 'Pursuit of pleasure not protected' (Metro, July 3-6) If letter writer Justin Dobbs is a man, as I presume, then it's with poor grace that he mocks women who want to "do it" without getting pregnant — after all, that's what men have always done. And no, the Hobby Lobby decision won't induce women to get married — after all, many married women want to space their pregnancies, too.

ALAN R. BROWN, VIA EMAIL

"You will do as my religion says, or else," is always a violation of freedom of religion. Sometimes it's a big violation, when the "or else" part is horrific, and the "you will do" part is repugnant to the person's own religion. Other times, it's a small violation, as when the "or else" part is merely some money, and the "you will do" part is merely the selection of one form of contraception over another. Big or small, it's still a violation of freedom of religion, not a constitutionally protected exercise of it.

Revs near halfway in up-and-down season

MLS. New England will hit the midway point this weekend, looking to get back to winning.

Diego Fagundez has four goals and three assists this season. / GETTY IMAGES

After the Revolution host the Chicago Fire on Saturday at Gillette Stadium, New England will officially be halfway through the 2014 MLS regular season.

As you can tell by a 7-7-2 record, it's been an up and down campaign thus far for the Revolution. The good news for them is that the Eastern Conference looks much easier to navigate than the loaded Western Conference.

Only four teams in the East have winning records, which is how New England find themselves surprisingly in good shape. They are currently in third place — three points behind Sporting KC and five points behind DC United with a game in hand on both — with the top five making the playoffs.

Including Saturday, 10 of New England's final 18 matches will be at Gillette Stadium, where they have gone 4-2-1. The Revolution have a goal differential of plus-6 at home and minus-6 on the road (3-5-1). Thanks to the scheduling quirks that were a byproduct of the World Cup, New England hasn't won a match since May 24. That sounds worse than it is, but the Revs have dropped their last four matches and have been outscored 9-2 in that span, including back-to-back shutouts. They were the top team in the Eastern Conference before this recent slide.

The slide may have hit its peak on July 4 with a disappointing 2-1 loss at Real Salt Lake. The Revolution surrendered two penalty kicks sandwiched around Darrius Barnes' first goal of the season.

"I'm not going to talk about the referee other than the fact that from start to finish it was a little bit cynical," head coach Jay Heaps said. "But then again, we fought hard, but we've got to do a little bit better job."

Second semifinal

World Cup preview: Netherlands vs. Argentina

The polarizing Lionel Messi and Argentina take the stage Wednesday at 4 p.m. on ESPN as the two-time World Cup champions take on the Netherlands, a country that has come close several times but has never brought home hardware.

The Dutch are led by Robin van Persie, whose 13 attempts in the tournament are only two less than Messi.

Holland also has Arjen Robben, another potent offensive weapon (scoring two goals and an assist).

Germans dominate

Germany nets seven goals in record-setting blowout

The first 29 minutes of Germany's 7-1 victory over Brazil in the first World Cup semifinal looked as if it would bring the host country to tears.

In less than a third of the game's playing time, the Germans completely walloped Brazil's defense into submission, becoming the first team to score five goals in less than 30 minutes in World Cup history.

Brazil also became the first host country to lose by more than four in a World Cup game. The only other time Brazil allowed seven goals was back in 1934.

Toni Kroos and substitute Andre Schurrle each scored a pair of goals in the victory for the German national team.

Finally, in stoppage time, Brazil avoided the shutout when Oscar scored, but of course the damage had already been done, and Germany punched its ticket to face the winner of Wednesday's Netherlands-Argentina contest in Sunday's World Cup final. METRO

Brazil had not lost in a competitive home game (meaning not an exhibition) since 1975 when they lost to Peru during the Copa America.

Germany's Miroslav Klose added insult to injury with his 16th career World Cup goal in the 23rd minute. The score broke the Brazilian legend Ronaldo's all-time record.
